NUMBER 260

It is said that Mr. Hammond, the revivalist, has preached in the open air at Manitowish, when the thermometer was 25 degrees below zero, and under that condition of things succeeded in making it warm for sinners.

A Democratic paper wants the Democratic members of the Legislature to vote for James G. Jenkins, for United States Senator. We hope they will. James likes to be voted for—no matter whether he is elected or not.

The senatorial headquarters will be located at the Park hotel and the Vilas house. Mr. Sawyer will be located at the former, and Mr. Keyes at the latter. A section of the Keyes force will be at the Park, but the "center of gravity" will be at the Vilas.

Mr. McCord, who supports Sawyer for Senator, whom the Sawyer men support for Speaker, dares to say in his own paper, that Keyes will make a good United States Senator. All the Sawyer men will think the same way when Mr. Keyes is elected. They will be awful good to him when they want favors.

The Milwaukee Sunday Telegraph publishes this senatorial straw: "Messrs. Keyes and Sawyer spent a portion of the week in this city. Mr. Sawyer begins to look as though he had learned that the fabulous stories of big figures in his favor were only ropes of sand, while Colonel Keyes looked and acted as though good tidings, well founded, were being wafted to him."

The total number of railway accidents in Wisconsin during 1880 was 227, against 133 for the year previous. The number of passengers carried in Wisconsin during the year was 2,513,395, and out of this vast number, not a single passenger was killed. It is marvelous to think of it, and shows what exceedingly great care is taken by the railway companies in carrying passengers.

It is currently reported in Washington that Senator Blaine will resign his seat in the Senate immediately after the electoral count on the 24th of February, so that his successor can be elected by the Legislature then in session. This, it is said, indicates that Senator Blaine will go into the cabinet of General Garfield as secretary of state. He has contracted to build a house in Washington which will cost $50,000, which is further evidence that he expects to fill a cabinet position.

The Democrats in Congress are opposed to opening the report of the postmaster general concerning the alleged violations of the banking law. It has been violated by Senator Wallace, Samuel Cox, and several other light Democratic lights, and for this reason they are opposed to having their records exposed. Three times have the Democrats demanded that the report shall be read, and three times have the Democrats prevented the reading by moving that the House adjourn. There is something in that report which the Democratic members of Congress do not want exposed to public notice.

FAMOUS COLD WINTERS.
The winter of 1880-1 will be classed with the coldest known in this country for many years. So far during the winter the average temperature has been zero. The cold winters of the present century are 1834-5, 1848-9, 1855-6, 1864, 1875, and 1880-1.

It is said the winter of 1834-5 was one of the coldest in the annals of cold weather. Several times in the Eastern States the thermometer reached 49 degrees below zero, and generally during the winter, the temperature was below zero. The winter follow was very cold also in some localities in the Eastern and Middle States, and deep snow covered the ground from the 23d of November to the last week in March, and even in some localities the snow remained on the ground till the first of May.

The winter of 1848-9 was a severe one throughout the West. The snow was deep, the weather bitterly cold, and much suffering existed especially in Illinois and Wisconsin.

The farmers of Wisconsin will not soon forget the terrible winter of 1855-6. It was cold in the East, but the cold wave seemed to have become more deadly as it swept over the Northern States. Several times the temperature was 30 degrees below zero, and for days in succession it stood at from ten to twenty degrees below. Stock feed was not very abundant that year, and the intensity of the cold and the scarcity of hay caused a great many deaths among cattle. That winter the New York harbor was much obstructed by ice, and the Potomac was frozen over during a greater part of the winter.

The winter of 1864 will also be long remembered by the people of the West. The new year was ushered in with the thermometer at from 30 to 38 degrees below zero. January was an exceedingly cold month throughout, the thermometer falling to 29, 25, and 30 degrees below zero.

The winter of 1875 has not yet passed out of the minds of the people of Janesville. For two months the cold was intensely severe. On January 5th, the thermometer stood at 16 degrees below zero. On the 7th, the same temperature was maintained. On the 9th, which was Saturday, the thermometer stood at 31 below at seven o'clock, and remained at 29 all day. On the 11th it was 39 and on the 13th 21. For fourteen days during the month, the mercury was below zero.

February was no improvement on January. On the 4th, the thermometer stood at 20 below, on the 5th at 19, and on Sunday morning the 7th the intensity of the cold was indicated by the thermometer standing at 40 degrees below, and during the entire day it did not sink below 21 degrees below. The morning following the thermometer marked 21 degrees below, and on Thursday the 9th, it reached 40 again and stood at 37 degrees at ten o'clock in the morning. On the 12th it was 21 below, on the 15th, 20 below, and on the 18th 20 below.

This morning the thermometer stood at 30 degrees below zero at seven o'clock, and at eight o'clock it was 24. It was the coldest morning since the 21st of February 1875.

FROM MADISON.

Special to the Gazette.

MADISON, Jan. 10.—Legislators and office seekers have commenced to arrive here, and by night the corridors of the hotels will be overflowing. Messrs. McCord, McPetridge, Bradford, and Rewey, candidates for speaker, are at the Park hotel. Mr. Pierce, another candidate for that position, will be here tonight. It has not yet developed who will be candidates for president pro tem of the Senate, Cham Ingersoll, of Beloit, and Mr. Baker, of Kenosha, are candidates for sergeant-at-arms, of the Senate. Charles E. Bross, as chief clerk of the senate, and John E. Eldred, of the Assembly, will be elected without opposition. There are several aspirants for sergeant-at-arms of the assembly. Tom St. George, of Racine, seems to be the most prominently spoken of. Hon. J. P. A. Williams, of Prairie du Chien, will be Assistant Chief Clerk of the Senate. There are plenty of candidates for the minor positions, but it is impossible to make predictions as to the lucky ones.

There seems to be a sort of lull in the senatorial matter. Mr. Sawyer has rooms at the Park and Mr. Keyes at the Vilas. Each are confident of ultimate success. The Governor's message will be delivered Thursday noon.

FOREIGN GOLD.

New York, Jan. 8.—The arrivals of gold from Europe at the Assay office for the week ended yesterday, were $1,017,000 in foreign coin and bars. The total arrivals since August 2, were $65,775,000, of which $59,889,000 was foreign coin and bars and $5,886,000 American coin. Total for the same period last year, $73,415,150. The payments by the Assay office on this account amounted to $1,765,354 for the week, and $59,697,754 since August 2.

THE SPRAGUES.

The Little Man from Rhode Island will not compromise.
New York, Jan. 8.—A proposition has been made by one of the counselors of Mrs. Kate Chase Sprague to one of ex-Governor Sprague's lawyers to strike from the divorce bill the objectionable features—viz., the charges of adultery brought against the ex-Governor, and thus make the bill a petition for divorce, simply on the ground of non-support. The response to this proposition was to the effect that no compromise would be made which did not justify his conduct towards the man who he claims a year and a half ago at Canochet. Gov. Sprague will not question the jurisdiction of the court to consider a bill of petition. He claims that whatever disgraceful facts may be disclosed at the impending trial the petitioner and her counselors are alone responsible for.

COLONEL INGERSOLL.

Contemplating a Trip to Australia.
WASHINGTON, Jan. 9.—It is said that Colonel Robert G. Ingersoll is seriously contemplating a trip to Australia next summer for the purpose of delivering a course of lectures. It is reported that his books have had a wonderful sale in country, and this has encouraged the orator to think that the colonists would give him a profitable welcome. His friends say that he will ask nothing from the next administration in the shape of political preferment, as he cannot afford to take anything that he might reasonably expect. He is just now very busy in the interest of the sugar men, who desire certain amendments made to the tariff laws.

THE CENSUS.

General Walker's Final Report to be Made this Week.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 9.—General Walker, superintendent of the census, is now engaged in the final revision of the census report as to the population before sending it to Congress, which he expects to do during the present week. The figures will not vary materially from those already named—viz.: 50,152,000. General Walker says he does not know where it originated, and that it did not come from the census office. The figures given show an increase over the census of 1870 of 11,593,629, or a trifle over 30 per cent, while the increase in the preceding decade was 7,115,043, or 22½ per cent. This large increase in the present ratio is attributable to several causes,—among them the fact that the present census has been more carefully taken than ever before. In 1870 there were but 6,000 enumerators, while for the present census there were 31,255, who made visitations from house to house, calling upon every family in the district. In what is known as the Black Belt in the South, the people not living on roads as in the North, but scattered about for convenience of location and water. The enumerators, instead of visiting the people, stopped at the county seats and large villages and questioned those who came as to themselves and their neighbors. In the selection of enumerators for the present census, particular pains were taken as their fitness for the work, and except in rare cases each was from a district in which he was to perform the duty. There is on file in the census office a good deal of testimony, much of it sworn to, to the accuracy of former censuses, and notably that of 1870. General Walker feels confident that from the general character of the enumerators, the smallness of the district assigned to each, and their personal acquaintance therewith, with the plan of house to house visitation, the actual number of inhabitants has been reached with far greater accuracy than ever before.

AN AFRICAN PRINCE.

Death Near Warrenton, Va., of an Old Negro Said to be the Son of an African King—He is Frozen to Death in His Cabin—A Very Remarkable Story.

WARRENTON, Va., Jan. 8.—An old negro named Hannibal Brown, living in a cabin near here by himself, was found dead last night. He had a remarkable history, being brought to this country from Africa in 1820. He always affirmed that his father was a King, who wore jewels and owned many men. He was tall and commanding in appearance, and, while always deferential to the white people, would allow none of his colored brethren to be familiar with him, and to the day of his death, he required them to treat him with the respect due a prince. His former master received such convincing proof of his royal birth that he emancipated him long before the war. Prince Hannibal then went to work as a blacksmith, and made much money. As fast as he made money he invested in slaves and he was never married, because he could find no woman of his race who was what he considered his equal by birth, and he lived an isolated life for this reason. The colored people could not, because he would not permit them to visit him. For a week he had not been seen, and yesterday some gentlemen went to his small cabin and looked through the window. Prince Hannibal was sitting back in a chair, his arms folded, his head drooping on his breast, dead. He had frozen to death, and must have died a week ago.

As everything he had was invested in slaves the war left him penniless, and he has since that time managed to make a meagre living at blacksmithing, but his old age prevented him from doing much work. He was never married, because he could find no woman of his race who was what he considered his equal by birth, and he lived an isolated life for this reason. The colored people could not, because he would not permit them to visit him. For a week he had not been seen, and yesterday some gentlemen went to his small cabin and looked through the window. Prince Hannibal was sitting back in a chair, his arms folded, his head drooping on his breast, dead. He had frozen to death, and must have died a week ago.

A STORY OF SUFFERING.

An Old Lady Entombed by Snow in Her House in Virginia and Frozen to Death.

BALTIMORE, Jan. 9.—A dispatch from Middlebury, London county, Va., says the snow in that vicinity has been on the ground for the past three weeks to the depth of forty-two inches on the level. It was drifted over the fences, hiding them from view, and blocking up the roads completely. The farmers have been obliged to cut down the shade trees near their farm-houses and use them as firewood, as the snow prevented them from hauling from the woods. Great suffering is said to have prevailed among the poor people. In one section, near the foot of the Blue Ridge, just where the Leesburg turnpike crosses the mountains, an old lady lived with a young grandson alone in a small house, a mile away from the nearest dwelling. She was completely entombed by the snow drifting down from the mountain, and for several days was without food. Being reduced to starvation, and knowing that any relief party would not be able to find her house, she cut a hole through the roof, and thrust a long pole through the snow with a gaily colored shawl on the end. It was seen by persons, who notified an old gentleman living a couple of miles away. He immediately ordered a colored man to mount a horse, and take with him food and fuel. He rode toward the house until his horse was stuck in the snow, and then could go no further. He managed with great difficulty to get back home, and upon telling his neighbor, the latter immediately summoned all the hands on the place, and, getting as near to the old woman's house as they could, they worked with shovels until they cut through into the cabin. On breaking in they found it was too late. The woman and her grandson had both frozen to death.

A FAIR STORY.

An Alleged Scheme to Abduct Colonel Fair, the Millionaire, and Hold Him for Ransom.

CARSON CITY, Jan. 9.—A highly sensational story was current here last evening to the effect that recently, while Colonel James G. Fair, the millionaire, was in Cadiz, a plot was concocted by two men to kidnap him, convey him to the mountains, and hold him there until the demand which they proposed making of half a million dollars ransom be paid to them by the colonel's family. Colonel Fair, during his stay in Cadiz, stopped at the residence of Mr. A. B. Pyle, a watch-maker, to whom the plot was revealed by his concocters, who offered to give Mr. Pyle $50,000 of the expected ransom to compensate him for any assistance he might render them in carrying out their desire. Colonel Fair's business, however, took him to Aurora on the night when the kidnapping was to have been done, and he thus escaped the impending danger. The men in the plot, if hard pressed, were to have killed the colonel and then fled to Mexico. Mr. Pyle is authority for the story.

CENTRAL RAILWAY STOCK.

MILWAUKEE, Jan. 9.—A great deal of interest has been awakened here in Wisconsin Central Railway stock, and several moneyed men have gone into it. They say that it will be quoted on the New York stock board soon. The common stock is now worth about 19 cents, an advance of 200 per cent since midsummer. Preferred is worth 37 to 38 cents. The improvement is owing in a measure to securing connections with the Northern Pacific.

RUN OVER AND KILLED.

LACROSSE, Wis., Jan. 8.—John Griffin a brakeman on the River Division of the Chicago, Milwaukee & St. Paul Railway, was run over by an engine last night and instantly killed at the railway crossing in the Fifth ward. He had just left his car, the train coming from the north, and was walking down the main track, and was so wrapped in clothing as not to hear the engine. He was cut in two and instantly killed. He is a single man, 24 or 25 years old, and has folks or relatives living at Hastings and Austin. His body was taken in charge by the railway company. This is the third death that has occurred in the yards since last summer.

CHICAGO GOSSIP.

From Our Regular Correspondent.
CHICAGO, January 10.—Business opens up for the New Year very bright and promising. Our wholesale houses have all they can attend to at this date. Heavy shipments of hardware, groceries, and dry goods, is the order of the day. For many years, the dull season after January 1st, generally continued three weeks or a month. This year it is changed, although very few houses have salesmen out, the orders come steady by mail right along, and there is no let up to the railroad blockades. The Michigan Central railroad has 15,000 freight cars on their tracks full of goods, lumber, coal, &c., and other railroads are equally pressed.

The deaths in Chicago for December, according to the health department reports, were 814, against 735 for the same month of 1879; 432 were under ten years of age; 189 under one year; 384 were females, and 430 males; 187 were married and 570 single; 22 widowers and 35 widows. There were 10 deaths from small-pox; 107 from diphtheria; 15 from scarlet fever, and two from measles; 111 from lung diseases, and 32 from fevers, croup, whooping cough, &c., carried off the balance. The deaths per 1,000 for 1880 were 19.40.

The Cheyenne chiefs, Four Bear, Blue Coat, Little No Hearts, Battling Bear, and White Swan, passed through Chicago last week, from Washington, home-ward bound. They have swarthy and forbidding aspects, and in every way are true representatives of their race. We had the pleasure on last Wednesday, of a social chat with Janesville's late respected citizen, L. B. Carle. He looks as naturally to Chicago and its business as a duck does to water. What is Janesville's loss is Chicago's gain in this respect. He informed your correspondent that their shipments for that day would exceed $5,000. May the firm's prosperity be commensurate with their high and honorable standing.

The grain elevator capacity of the city at present is twenty-one millions of bushels. This will be increased the present year to twenty-four millions, and farmers need have no hesitation in raising all the grain possible, as Chicago is making every effort to take care of the entire northwest. The endless chain street railway will soon be in operation, by the South Side company. The common council have granted all privileges, and Chicago is bound to keep up with the times in every improved and laudable enterprise. Over a dozen New York firms started branch houses here during 1880, and as many more will follow suit next spring. A Boston clothing house is about commencing operations; likewise three Philadelphia firms of large capital.

St. Louis has been trying very hard to encroach on Chicago's rights by holding out inducements to some of the above houses to go there, but the eastern men can not be fooled in their choice of locations for business.

Good sound heavy horses are now bringing from $125 to $150. The sale stable are constantly crowded with buyers and sellers. Carriage and buggy horses are slow of sale. A guarantee of soundness is generally demanded ere a trade is consummated. Seven car loads arrived here on last Friday from the East.

The manufacturers of barb wire fence have had to stop all operations, and no more will be made until certain injunctions are removed or settlements made with the original inventors.

A German family came from Buffalo on Saturday, numbering twenty-two persons. The youngest, a child of four months, and the oldest a boy of 18 summers. Father, mother, sixteen boys and four girls. No sickness of any kind was ever experienced by father, mother or children during their lives. The weight of the entire family was just 2000 pounds. They settle here permanently.

Vaccination is now progressing very rapidly throughout the city.

Two hundred and forty cars of coal came in last week.

Our business men's ledgers show large profits in general, and our coal merchants in particular.

She strongly recommends it, and wishes to act as agent among her neighbors. Sold by A. J. Roberts and Croft & Sherer.

BRIEFLETS.

—How is this for low?

—The New Year starts in bad on the old cars.

—There will be a Nobles' show at the Opera house, to-night.

—There's no further use to tell a man "not to get in a sweat."

—Prof. Severance's dancing school to-night. Last lesson of the term.

—Extra meetings are to be held in Court Street Church four evenings this week.

—The public schools began another term to-day, but it's too cold for the young ideas to learn how to shoot snowballs.

—The Joy case has had another adjournment, this time until to-morrow afternoon, on account of absence of witnesses.

—Burr Robbins is busy preparing for next season, and is planning now for two elegant tableaux cars, four new cages, and four new wagons, and others are to follow.

—Another colored church is in debt. It is Janesville this time, and a lady collector is in the city to-day calling upon citizens for the wherewithal to liquidate said debt.—Wapwan Leader.

—The new key board for the central telephone office is delayed by some unexpected circumstances which have so affected the manufacturers that they cannot fill the order as soon as promised.

—Quarterly meeting services were held yesterday at the First Methodist church, and Rev. A. J. Mead, the Presiding Elder, preached, although he had to keep one arm in a sling, as the results of the railroad accident on New Year's morning.

—The thermometer of the city varied this morning considerably, the difference being in locations, and in times of observations. The lowest we have heard of stated was 30 degrees below, which point was touched at H. S. Woodruff's farm and vicinity, and at high points on the East side of the river.

—The little son of Mr. and Mrs. J. H. Boyle, of Milton, who was very sick last week, is considered out of danger now, but Mr. Boyle was recently taken down with a violent cold on the lungs, and his physician says he must keep his bed a few days. It is hoped no permanent disease will fasten itself upon him.

—Shurtliff & Hill are making and selling some most toothsome confectionaries, which are a credit to them as they rival those made by the best confectioners in the large cities. If you want to make home happy step in and get a box of those candies, and try their effect. They will sweeten a whole household.

—Moseley says he pledges his word that the Opera house will be warm, to-night. The fires were started at five o'clock this morning, and there will be heat, sure. It seems too bad that the public has to be thus assured of a comfortable home before they will turn out to a show, but it seems to be the case, especially this weather.

—The freight train which leaves here for Chicago Sunday night, with A. H. Stickney as conductor, met last night with a mishap below Harvard, caused by a broken rail, by which twelve freight cars were thrown from the track, but fortunately no one was injured. The wreck delayed the other trains somewhat, and the Chicago train due here this afternoon was behind about an hour.

—The funeral services of Mrs. Blunk were held this forenoon, Rev. Father Munich officiating. The friends met at the home, and proceeded with the remains to St. Mary's church, and after the usual service there, the remains were taken to the cemetery near Afton, where they were laid at rest beside those of her husband. Despite the intense cold a number of the sympathizing friends accompanied the bereaved relatives to the last resting place.

—W. P. Clarke, the Milton druggist, was in the city to-day, and say that the thermometer there at 5 o'clock this morning stood at 42 degrees below, and at quarter past seven o'clock stood at 39 below. There must be considerable difference between there and Janesville, for here this morning Mr. S. Heinstreet picked up a basket of fresh flowers in his garden—that is, he picked them in his greenhouse, which is located in his garden.

—No form of beauty has more de votes, especially among the ladies, than flowers; but in order to have these beautiful gems of nature in perfection, it is necessary to procure good seed, and also to be in possession of some knowledge as to the proper manner of planting the seed and cultivating the plant. This, and much more useful information is contained in D. M. Ferry & Co's beautifully Illustrated Descriptive and Priced Seed Annual, which they offer to send free to all. See their advertisement in our columns.

—Saturday evening Baldwin's Bill-liants gave the last of their series of unique entertainments at the Opera house, and were greeted by a fair sized audience, who seemed greatly interested in the various mysterious doings there performed. The company goes to Portage City and Madison, and the amusement lovers of those places can be assured that they will be well entertained by attending their performances, for the company present a variety of talent and have an excellent repertoire, which by adopting some slight changes can be enhanced greatly in interest.

—Milton Nobles' Company, bag and baggage, are here, ready to thrill and tickle the crowd which shall gather, to-night, at the Opera house. The play, "A Man of the People," is pronounced fully equal to "The Phoenix," and Milton Nobles will show up fully as strong as in the Bohemian, by which he made himself so popular here. The company supporting him is a good one, and he would have no other, so all can feel assured that an entertainment will be presented which will be worthy of their presence and patronage. A goodly number of reserved seats have been checked off, and in spite of cold weather, it is expected there will be a good and warm house.

—The new armory of the Bower City Rifles in Bennett's block is to be dedicated next Friday evening. The ceremonies are to commence at 7:30 o'clock, and at 9 o'clock the dancing begins. The reception committee consists of Captain J. B. LaGrange, and Lieutenants Andrews and Brown, and the floor marshals are Clem Jackson, G. Thompson, Sergeant L. Lee, Corporal C. Bay, Corporal G. Wilson, Corporal James Murtaugh, J. Stringer and G. Sheller. Anderson's band is to furnish the music, and a merry time will be had by all who attend. The Rifles merit a liberal patronage, and there should be no hesitancy on the part of our citizens at investing in the tickets, which are only one dollar.

OBITUARY.

GEORGE H. WILLISTON.

The sad news that George H. Williston is no more, will come with much suddenness to many of his old acquaintances and will cause a general feeling of sorrow and sympathy throughout the community in which he has so long lived. For a year past he has been in feeble health and especially during these winter months he has been in a condition to alarm those who were thrown in sufficient intimate relationship with him to notice closely the changes. Still he was able to be about much of the time, and even last week was upon the street, but Friday his old troubles, which were of a complicated and chronic nature, returned with unusual severity, and he grew rapidly worse. His son Horace, of Chicago, was summoned, and arrived Saturday evening, but the other absent children were too far distant to reach here. Every possible attention was given the suffering one; but skill and love could not win in the contest with disease, and about noon yesterday he entered into rest. The family has thus been bereft of a kind husband and father, and the loss is one which is felt to beyond the circle of home, for it takes from the community a man whose many merits of mind and heart, had won for him a high place in the public esteem and confidence.

Mr. Williston was born in Binghampton, Broome county, N. Y., and came to Wisconsin in April, 1837, settling on section 17, in the town of Harmony, this county, where he remained until December, 1841, when he took up his residence in this city, having been elected Register of Deeds. So well did he fill this position that he was re-elected, again and again, for five consecutive terms. He was also one of the members of the first City Council of Janesville, and was Chairman of the Fire Department Committee, which purchased the first two hand engines for the city's use. He also represented this district at the State capitol, being a member of the house of representatives of the territorial legislature in 1847 and 1848, and later he was a Whig member of the Assembly in 1855.

He then engaged in the grocery business and was thus busied for two years. He was in 1863 elected City Clerk, and held this position for seven consecutive years, and has thus for a large portion of his life in Rock county been in positions of trust and responsibility, in all of which he has shown marked integrity and faithfulness.

In 1839 he was married to her who now steps into the shadow of widowhood; and of the children four still live, one being Mrs. Nash, of Dakota; Clara H., who resides at home; Horace Williston, of Chicago, Secretary of the Menominee River Lumber Company; and William H., who now is engaged in business in Leadville. To these and the other relatives the blow is a heavy one, and in few families have the ties of affection been more closely drawn, and few firesides have been as happy as theirs.

TALKING TO WISE MEN.

Yesterday morning Rev. L. B. Loomis, of Lone Rock, Wis., occupied the pulpit at All Souls church, and preached from the words found in the fifteenth verse of the tenth chapter of First Corinthians—"I speak as to wise men: judge ye what I say." The speaker spoke of that mysterious cause around which revolved so many questions, which perplexed the human mind of all ages, and which still remained unsolved, and pressed the question, whether it was not best that man should never find, in this world at least, the answers to all his questionings; whether it was not better that he should ever be searching after God, and never find him; whether it was not better he should not reach the best of his nature's possibilities in this life.

He pictured Ritualism on one side as saying that it satisfied completely, and Growth on the other side saying, man could never be satisfied, and between the two he stood, as Charles Wesley in his hymn "Lo! on a narrow neck of land." He thought Wesley must mean Ritualism by one of these seas.

The first question to be settled was that "I am." The fact of personal, individual existence was one which could not be denied, and the more clearly it stood forth, the more clearly other facts pressed themselves on the mind. Two great questions and temptations presented themselves to the one who was thus impressed with the fact—"I am." One was Rome, the other Reason. He meant by Rome, ritualism, which was a shorter word to use. Sunday morning the speaker heard the church bells of the city ring out, "Rome, Rome," but the chimes were not loud enough to drown out the whisper of Reason calling for another morning's snooze. What shall be the law of this "I am."—Rome or Reason? Rome prefers rest. Reason prefers unrest. One is a finished quantity—the other an unfinished one. As for himself the speaker preferred to be at the center of the whiffletree, where the bolt went through, than at either end. Why should not men judge for themselves which is right, as Paul urges in the text?

Among the early consciousnesses is that of a superior. Man learns that he cannot grasp Orion, or hold the ocean, and learns that there is a superior. This inspires awe, which is the initial letter of worship. Then man finds that there is a wonderful order in the universe; and it excites admiration, the second step in worship, and most worship ends here. Some go further and find in the manifestations of the superior power that there is a sympathy and care for man. The ear is so attuned as to catch both the thunder and the bird's warble, and delight in them. The eye is adapted for the blue of heaven and the green of earth. This manifestation of care for man inspires love, and leads to the inquiry, what can man do in return? This brings him up to the line of human duty. The first question is, "How can I do with that which is mine?" The answer to this was the well known—"Do thyself no harm." There were harms done to the mind as well as the body. Some fancied that man was only an eating, drinking and sleeping animal, with a capability for absorbing gold-dust. Care should be taken of the thought. Some put God to a good deal of expense to force him into special manifestations. Now, if God does violate the laws of his nature, man has an excuse for violating the laws of his, but if God does not, man too should obey the laws of both mind and body.

This led to the further thought of what should be man's position toward others. Duty was summed up in the one word "Charity," and this was his closing theme.

The speaker had not a large audience, but all listened attentively. He has a quaint yet fresh manner, which makes him peculiarly interesting, and efforts will be made to induce him to occupy the pulpit next Sunday also, that more may have the opportunity of hearing him.
